DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 1 and 2 describe an elastic solid body as a hydraulic medium. It is unclear how a solid can be used as a hydraulic medium, rendering the claim indefinite.

Claims 3 and 4 are rejected as being dependent on claim 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1, 2, and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Green (2,563,464). Regarding claims 1 and 2, Green discloses an expansion chucking device having: a base body (18); and expansion sleeve (14) provided at an axial end region of the base body, which sleeve forms a central receptacle (See figure 1) for a component to be chucked; and a chucking ring (16) that surrounds the expansion sleeve (14) (See Figure 1). The chucking ring (16) surrounds the expansion sleeve (14) as it is advanced to secure a component (Col. 2, Lines 8-17). An annular pressure chamber (See Figure 1) is located between the expansion sleeve shoulder (25) and the chucking ring (16) wherein the chucking ring is threaded-joined to the base body (See Figure 1). The pressure chamber being filled with a hydraulic medium (13) and the expansion sleeve being capable of being elastically deformed in order to secure a component in the receptacle by the fact that the chucking ring (16) is axially displaced by rotation with respect to the base body (See Col. 1, Line 50 - Col. 2, Line 17), with a reduction in the volume of the pressure chamber. The pressure chamber being filled with an elastic solid body (13) as a hydraulic medium. A sliding ring element (28) is arranged between the elastic solid body (13) and a pressure surface of the chucking ring (10) in order to transfer an axial compressive force from the chucking ring to the solid body.

4. Regarding claim 4, green discloses wherein the pressure chamber possesses a substantially constant inside diameter (See Figure 1).

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Green (US 2,563,464). Green discloses a ring shaped (see Figure 5) elastic solid body (13) used as a hydraulic medium. Green does not disclose the use of several adjacently disposed elastic solid body rings. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Green to use multiple ring elements, since it is a mere duplication of the essential working parts of a device which involves only routine skill in the art.
